Roads to Success

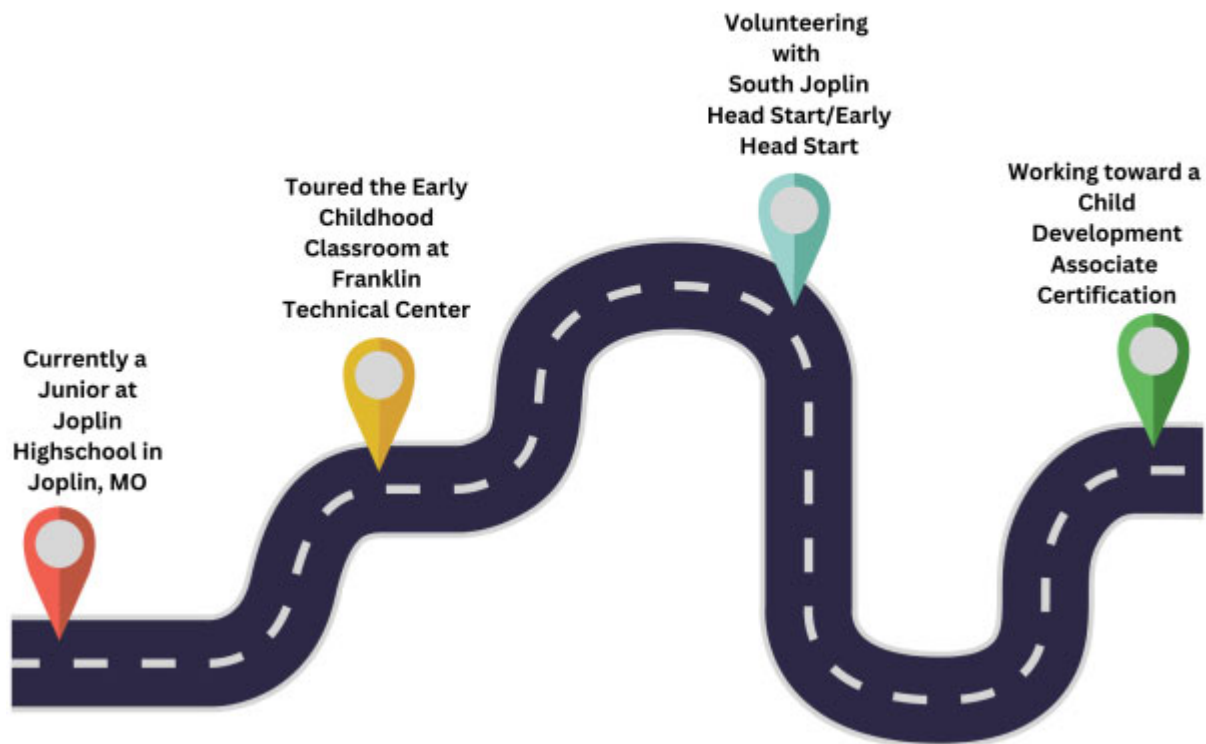

Throughout 2024, the Office of Childhood (OOC) will share “Roads to Success,” a collection of stories from professionals and higher education institutions. Stories from professionals feature achievements from people working in childhood programs such as home visiting, early intervention, child care, Head Start, preschool, and afterschool. Stories from higher education institutions highlight colleges and universities who are using innovative methods to support and grow the early childhood workforce. There are many roads to success, it is important to highlight the varying and unique pathways that professionals take and how higher education programs can pave the way. These stories are also available at the bottom of the Early Connections website.

This month’s Road to Success story features Elijah Chauncey, a current junior at Joplin High School in Joplin. Elijah is working towards his Child Development Associate (CDA) certification to jumpstart his career by taking early childhood courses at Franklin Technical Center (FTC). Elijah will graduate from high school in 2025 and obtain his CDA once he turns 18. Elijah said he first became interested in the CDA during his sophomore year of high school when he toured the early childhood classroom at FTC. Elijah shared, “something about being in that room spoke to me and I felt very inspired; I just wanted to join the program.”

Elijah spoke about his current coursework centering around storytelling and utilizing books in the classroom. He has enjoyed the opportunity his early childhood courses give him to begin preparing his portfolio - a certification requirement for the CDA. Elijah is currently volunteering in the South Joplin Head Start/Early Head Start in conjunction with his high school courses. He said a pivotal point for him was when he first began visiting the classroom and met a student who was struggling. Elijah said he bonded with the student and that his passion for early childhood ignited through watching the student flourish. He aspires to “help raise the next generation of great people.” He advises anyone going into the field to, “go into it for the right reasons and have your heart in the right place.”

Here is what Elijah’s road to success looks like!

REMINDER! Background Checks: Myth vs Fact

Myth: DESE requires child care providers to have a background check on file before a First Steps early intervention provider can deliver services to a child at a child care program.

Fact: Per 210.1080, RSMo, child care staff members and volunteers are required to have a background check completed prior to providing child care. First Steps providers are not considered child care staff members. All First Steps providers undergo a comprehensive background check prior to being enrolled and providing services. All First Steps providers must also complete an annual Family Care Safety Registry screening.

Therefore, DESE does not require a background check to be on file at the child care program in order for First Steps providers to deliver services at a child care program.

Learn more about child care requirements on the Child Care Background Check Process webpage.

Spotlight on Success

Spotlight on Success aims to share stories from local programs that are building community partnerships in order to strengthen and coordinate childhood programs.

The Dexter R-XI School District's Parent Education Program has been partnering with Dexter Regional Healthcare Foundation for five years. This is a partnership that developed based on a pilot of home visitors across the state and has continued providing parent education through the Bootheel Babies program and Mother-to-Mother. The partnership is exemplified by a recent story from Melanie Stoelting from Dexter Parent Education Program.

Melanie recently received a phone call from the Safe Babies program in another state about a 6-month-old baby under their service. Soon, the baby will be moving to the Dexter area to be in the care of a family member. The Safe Babies representative found parent education information on the Regional HealthCare Foundation webpage through their partnership. After talking with them about how parent education support is offered, she also suggested they reach out to the Parentlink representative for the Dexter area to provide kinship services.

Recently when Melanie checked in with the Parentlink representative, she learned that they had in fact had an email from Safe Babies and were happy to provide the family with support as they cared for this baby while working with their parent educator. When Melanie spoke with the family in-person about the team support parent educators and Parentlink will be providing, the family member said, "This brings me comfort." Working together, these programs were able to support this family as they enter a new community!
